REGION

Puglia

Puglia is easily identified on a map as the 'heel' to Italy's 'boot', in the far south-east of the country, along the Adriatic coast. It has long been a region of significant viticultural importance, and its mediterranean climate and prominence of calcareous soils have created an ideal environment f... Read More

GRAPE

Trebbiano

Trebbiano is Italian nomenclature for the grape variety Ugni Blanc and is often used as a lighter, more delicate component of many Italian white wines, regularly pairing with fuller grapes such as Verdicchio, providing balance, delicacy and crispness. It is a prolific variety and is widely planted a... Read More
