REGION

Abruzzo

Abruzzo is a mountainous region in central Italy, with a significant Adriatic coastline. It is Italy's fifth most significant wine-producing region by volume. Like much of Italy, the region enjoys a warm climate and this is combined with an extensive variety of favourable, hillside sites that stretch across the region. Read More

GRAPE

Pecorino

Pecorino is a lightly skinned white varietal commonly grown in central Italy. Dry and mineral, it offers good acidity as well as high ripeness giving relatively generous alcohol content. A variety hard to grow due to low yields, it performs well at high altitude.

TASTING NOTES

Citra ChiChiBio Pecorino Terre d Abruzzo 2024. Aged on fine lees in stainless steel, this Pecorino exhibits a complex and lingering bouquet of flowers, apricot, peach, and pineapple, dried herbs, and notes of spice. On the palate, it is fresh and well-balanced with mineral finish with subtle apricot and apple notes lingering.

Food Matches

Katsu Curry, Quattro Formaggi Pizza & Roasted King Oyster Mushrooms
