REGION

Tuscany

Tuscany is arguably one of the most important wine-producing regions in Italy, where it is known locally as Toscana. A full 68% of the region is classified as 'hilly' and hillside vineyards produce the overwhelming majority of the highest quality wines. Sangiovese, the region's signature grape varie... GRAPE

Sangiovese

Sangiovese is Italy's most widely planted red grape variety, particularly common in Central Italy and most notably, principally responsible for the fine red wines of Tuscany. It is the base of the blend for Chianti, Vino Nobile di Montepulciano and most Supertuscans. It produces high quality wines w... Read More

TASTING NOTES

Canalicchio di Sopra Rosso di Montalcino DOC 2022. Fresh, fruity and spicy with elegant notes of cherry and blackberry, enriched by complex hints of licorice. On the palate, there is a large and soft structure enhanced by silky and polished tannins, plump and fascinating with a long and persistent aromas.
