REGION

Veneto

The Veneto is an extremely important region in the north-east of Italy, stretching from the west at the shores of Lake Garda as far north as the Alps, the Austrian border and the Venetian hinterland. It is Italy's largest wine-producing region. DOC wines represent well over a quarter of total produc... Read More

GRAPE

Corvina

Corvina is the most important varietal in the Valpolicella appellation, with its famous sour-cherry character, as well as good body and structure.Thick skins means it can be air-dried in the traditional appassimento style, making it suitable for use in the prestigious Amarone della Valpolicella wine... TASTING NOTES

Bussola Tommaso Amarone Classico Vigneto Alto 2012. From higher-altitude vines from a single vineyard, aged for 36-40 months in large oak casks and tonneaux, followed by bottle refinement. Profound complexity with dried fruit, balsamic, and chocolate notes with a hint of bright zesty acidity that is fresh on the finish.
